

Manutention

Workshop

Course Overview

Manutention training helps develop safe movement behaviour. Participants are taught a system of postures and actions that can be integrated into any activity requiring manual handling. The postures and actions are used as “building blocks” to safe handling or are the fundamental components to safer manual handling.

The teaching approach is based on adult learning principles. The focus is on retraining specific movement patterns and therefore lends itself to competency measurement.

Recommended For

The course is recommended for any person that performs manual handling activities in their workplace, or in their home. Manutention skills training can help reduce the risk of injury in the workplace or at home. The safe postures and actions can be applied across all manual handling tasks and therefore manutention can be used everywhere!
